CU Denver Student Steel Bridge Competition Team

Team Leaders: Dakota Chauncey, Hussain Almosawi, Valerie Do
Dustin Doll, Kyle O’Hearn, and Dinesh Panta

The Competition:

Civil Engineering students are challenged to an intercollegiate competition that supplements their education with a comprehensive, student-driven project experience from conception and design through fabrication, erection, and testing. The Student Steel Bridge Competition provides design and management experience, opportunity to learn fabrication processes, and the excitement of networking with and competing against teams from other schools. The competition has a long-established tradition of ethical behavior, professionalism, civility, and respect for people and property.

Need for Funds:

This competition team is ran entirely by students. We are responsible for acquiring the necessary funds to design and build a steel bridge for this competition. We are looking for both donations from individuals as well as companies. The competition costs a substantial amount of money to compete. Expenses include procurement of materials, fabrication, transportation, and lodging. Our goal as a team is to raise an additional $5,000 to compete in the national competition. This number has been based off calculations for travel, lodging, vehicle rental, national registration and upgrading our bridge.
